

Health, Social Care and Sport Committee

30th Meeting, 2022 (Session 6), Tuesday, 1 November 2022

National Care Service (Scotland) Bill

Note by the clerk

Background

1. The National Care Service (Scotland) Bill was introduced by the Scottish Government on 20 June 2022.
2. On 30 June 2022, the Parliament agreed to designate the Health, Social Care and Sport Committee as lead committee for scrutiny of the Bill at Stage 1 and to designate the Education, Children and Young People Committee and the Local Government, Housing and Planning Committee as secondary committees.

Purpose of the Bill

3. The Scottish Government describes the purpose of the Bill as being “to improve the quality of social work and social care services in Scotland”. By bringing forward proposals for the creation of a National Care Service, the Scottish Government aims to make sure that these services are offered in the same way and at the same standard throughout Scotland.
4. In September 2020, the Scottish Government announced an Independent Review of Adult Social Care (IRASC), otherwise referred to as ‘The Feeley Review’ after its lead author, Derek Feeley. The review’s aim was to recommend improvements to adult social care in Scotland so that people who use social care services and work in the sector have a better experience. In August 2021, the Scottish Government published a consultation on its proposals to improve social care delivery in Scotland, based on some of the recommendations in the review – the scope of this consultation was broader than adult social care and included children’s services and criminal justice social work. This Bill has been developed in response to some of the review’s recommendations and responses to the consultation.
5. The Bill as introduced allows Scottish Ministers to transfer responsibility for social work and social care from local authorities to a new, national service, under their direct control. Social care, social work and community health services would be planned and delivered by new care boards. The national care service, like services organised by integration authorities now, could include adult and children’s services, as well as areas such as justice social work. The Scottish Government would need to consult the public before transferring children’s services or justice social work responsibilities.

6. Scottish Ministers will also be able to transfer healthcare functions from the NHS to the National Care Service. Care or health services that are transferred could be delivered nationally or locally by care boards. New ‘special’ care boards, not based on geographic boundaries, could also be established to provide specialised national services.
7. As well as establishing the National Care Service, the Bill proposes other changes including:
  - allowing information to be shared by the National Care Service and the NHS;
  - introducing a right to breaks for carers;
  - giving rights to people living in adult care homes to see the people important to them (known as “Anne’s Law”).

Scrutiny

8. The Committee initially agreed its approach to Stage 1 scrutiny of the National Care Service (Scotland) Bill during its meeting on 28 June 2022 before further discussing its approach at its meeting on 6 September 2022.
9. The Committee issued a call for written views and Your Priorities digital consultation on the Bill on 8 July 2022, which ran until 2 September 2022. The call for written views received 215 responses<sup>1</sup>. More than 150 users took part in the online discussion via the Your Priorities digital consultation, providing over 300 comments on provisions in the Bill and over 550 ratings.<sup>2</sup>
10. In preparation of its Stage 1 scrutiny of the Bill, the Committee agreed to commission research looking at international examples of how social care is organised and funded.
11. The Committee will undertake Stage 1 scrutiny of the Bill over the course of eight meetings of the Committee between October and December 2022.
12. Alongside this programme of formal evidence gathering, the Committee will also undertake a programme of informal engagement to further inform its scrutiny of the Bill.

Today’s meeting

---

<sup>1</sup> Published responses for National Care Service \(Scotland\) Bill \(Detailed\) - Scottish Parliament - Citizen Space

<sup>2</sup> National Care Service \(Scotland\) Bill - Your Views on the Bill \(parliament.scot\)

13. At today's meeting, the Committee will take evidence from two panels of stakeholders. The first panel will focus on a human rights approach and legislative considerations.
14. The Policy Memorandum states:

“The Scottish Government is determined that social care and social work services should deliver consistent, high quality support to every person who needs it, across Scotland. Those services must have human rights at the heart of the system, enabling people to take their full part in society and live their lives as they want to... The Scottish Government's vision for the National Care Service is that it will: ...provide services that are co-designed with people who access and deliver care and support, respecting, protecting and fulfilling their human rights.”
15. The second panel will focus on local government.
16. Local authorities have been responsible for the delivery of social services for decades, going back to the 1968 Social Work \(Scotland\) Act and the 1948 National Assistance Act. After education, social work/social care is the second largest area of local government expenditure, with councils spending over £3.5 billion of their net revenue expenditure on social services in 2020-21. This represented around a third of Scottish local government total net expenditure.
17. The Bill sets out powers for the Scottish Ministers to transfer community health, social care, and social work functions to the NCS by secondary legislation. Such transfers will have major budgetary, staffing, policy and governance implications for local authorities.

Clerks to the Committee

27 October 2022